

Slave Girl - WN Chapter 01-03

Table of Contents

1. Chapter 1
2. Chapter 2
3. Chapter 3

Chapter 1

Demotion Trip ~The Magic Girl Swordsman from the Hero's Party Stumbled into Another World and Became a Slave

by Sakura Ageha (author of Otoburi)

<http://ncode.syosetu.com/n4083ct/>

The magic girl swordsman Riley who had defeated the Demon King and was being celebrated as a hero, was transported into another world by a goddess as a savior.

Magic was not possible in this world.

What's more, the moment she fell into this world, she was caught by a strange man, and before she realized it, she was already a slave!? Hang on a minute here, goddess! Please give me an explanation~!!

Chapter 1: Prologue, part 1

– A flash of light

Countless beams of light wrapped around the entire world with enough brightness to illuminate everything in the world. Some people were crying tears of joy, and some people opened up the windows in their houses and looked up at the night sky that was as bright as midday. People's exclamations of joy resounded throughout the land.

The Demon King had been defeated.

Inside the castle of the largest country on the continent, the Weizland Kingdom, everyone was full of vigor. All the guards were dressed up and playing musical instruments, and all the girls were wearing fluttery dresses like flowers and having fun without any worries. In front of the castle, real flowers had been scattered about, and all the merchants were having the busiest time they've ever had this year. In every single street and every single country, it was as if a festival was going on, things weren't like this only in this country.

Suddenly, from the people gathered around the castle, exceptionally loud cheers could be heard.

"It's the Hero-sama!"

"It's the Hero-sama and his party that defeated the Demon King!"

Someone raised their voice, and everyone's eyes turned in their direction.

In front of a horse-drawn carriage that five young people were riding on were soldiers clearing a path through the people for the carriage to proceed. The person in the middle was standing up through a removable part of the carriage's roof, and people could see him clearly. There were soldiers all around the carriage, and in an outer circle around the soldiers, dancers dressed in beautiful costumes were dancing as they proceeded.

"Hero-sama! Banzai!"

"Hero-sama, Hero-sama, Hero-sama!"

Everyone's cheers were directed at the young people in the carriage, and the person standing up waved his hand wildly at everyone. He was wearing silver armor, and was a young man with fierce and dauntless features. His ash blonde hair was sparkling under the reflection of the sun. His bright purple eyes were interestingly bright, and he was looking at everyone with a gentle smile as he waved.

"Ahh. You're so full of spirit even when just giving everyone some special service."

Sitting opposite him, was a boy in a black mantle who was smiling sardonically. His dark blue trimmed bangs were shaking somewhat unpleasantly.

"Well, don't mind, don't mind, isn't it fine if I give them just a little service. It's not like I'll lose anything."

As the boy with the ash blonde hair replied, the girl sitting next to him who was dressed like a cleric smiled and nodded. Her pinkish blonde curly hair was so long that it even reached the seat of the carriage she was sitting on.

“That’s right. Just for today, we’ll let them off and give them a good look.”

Sitting across from that girl was a large, strapping boy with dark skin and no hair. The boy was averting his eyes from everyone in dissatisfaction as a sign of protest.

“Hey, Riley, you should say something as well. Aren’t these guys just getting too carried away because of all this pampering?”

The boy with dark skin spoke up to the girl sitting next to him, who was also sitting across from the boy with ash blonde hair and the girl dressed like a cleric.

The plain girl with red eyes and straight black hair that reached all the way to her back and was wearing no accessories whatsoever, muttered something in reply in a voice that lacked emotion.

“.....I don’t care either way.”

Chapter 2

Chapter 2: Prologue, part 2

Riley was sick and tired of everything. Because of all the stupid events surrounding the triumphant return of the Hero and the resulting parade, it's been one thing or another, and they've been parading around the town for half a day already. It's hot, tiresome, and exhausting.

"Whoa!"

The wizard boy named Keito sitting diagonally across from Riley suddenly twisted his body. As for why, it seems that a piece of candy flew into the carriage from the direction of the mass of townspeople. The candy fell on the floor of the carriage with a "plunk!" sound.

"How dangerous....."

The overly excited populace had started tossing various items such as food, flowers, and even dolls modeled after them at the carriage.....

Keito was just like Riley, fed up with everything, and was slouching against the side of the carriage.

Riley was looking into the distance at Weizland Castle. Since they were making one full circle around the castle town, it seemed that it would still take quite a bit of time.

"Now, now. Keito and Riley, don't be so down, and try to enjoy yourselves, okay? After all, such a chance is limited only to today."

The boy with ash blonde hair sitting next to Riley was Ash, the person tirelessly waving at the crowds earlier, and when he showed off his sword to them he had been bathed in cheers. As the swordsman who undertook a special mission directly from the king to defeat the Demon King, everyone called him the "Hero." In truth, he was a person that had been summoned here and guided by the goddess herself, a "chosen one."

The other members all voluntarily gathered themselves around Ash.

The cleric, Erin, was saved by Ash during the time when the Demon King's subordinates were attacking a church, and she's requested to travel with him since then. As for the famous martial artist Igor, it seems that he was impressed with Ash's abilities when he lost to him during a certain martial arts tournament. Since then, he's been persistently following Ash around. In the end, he even followed him all the way to the final battle against the Demon King. And as for the wizard Keito, he used to be the Demon King's subordinate, a member of the demonic cult, but he betrayed them and aligned himself with Ash. In order for the demonic cult to not harm humans anymore, it's been completely dismantled.

The members had all been gathered as a matter of course, but now they all trust and rely on each other. And as for Ash and Erin, they've become lovers as well as fellow party members. Riley had secretly pined for Ash herself as well but, he had been four years older than Riley, and he never even viewed Riley as a member of the opposite gender.

".....I don't particularly care anyways."

It's more than enough for Riley that Ash took her out of that place. She doesn't wish for anything more. That's what Riley's decided. Riley's talent had been recognized and scouted by Ash as well, so she also accompanied them to the final battle against the Demon King. Before that, she had been staying in a military facility. It was a facility that picked up orphans and mass-produced them as soldiers to be used against the Demon King.

Since the fires of revenge burned strong within these children whose friends and family had all been killed by subordinates of the Demon King, they willingly trained themselves in battle and became excellent weapons that danced across the battlefield. Riley had also been one of those children. Riley had already been in the facility since she was a baby, and had no memories of her parents. However, her abilities far surpassed that of the other children. Her talents as a magic swordsman were blossoming and caught the eye of Ash, and he approached her to ask her to travel together with him to fight against the Demon King.

When they entered Weizland Castle, it was already dusk and night was approaching. Riley and Keito both set foot in the castle as if they were missing half of their souls. Ash was still quite energetic.

To the Hero and his party that visited the castle, the king generously promised to “grant whatever wishes each of you may have.”

The Hero Ash got married with Erin, and became the king’s personal knight. The cleric Erin asked for support for the church that she was from. The martial artist Igor received lots of gold and a noble title, and he decided to stay with Ash and work by his side. He also married a noble daughter as well. The wizard Keito requested a pardon for all his crimes as a member of the demonic cult, and stayed in the royal palace to work as the court magician.

“Alright, Riley. What would you like? Money, or a noble title? A high-ranked job?”

“.....I don’t want anything. Suffice it to say, I just want to be free.”

Riley received a small house in the forest near the castle, and even though she was only the young age of thirteen, she began living a quiet life of seclusion free from worldly cares. Of course, the Weizland Kingdom was taking care of her living expenses. In exchange, Riley and the other members as well were all placed under the surveillance of the Weizland Kingdom. The heroes of the past may be a threat in the future. It could be said that the worth of a hero was only this much in the end.

Chapter 3

Chapter 3 – Riley got the goddess angry

It's been five years since then. Riley was now eighteen.

As for Riley who's grown up to be beautiful, she's been spending her time in her forest home doing the things she likes. Reading books, or making sweets..... She was enjoying the peaceful life that she's always longed for. Since the king highly valued her abilities, his servants visited her over and over to invite her to become a knight but, Riley rejected them every time. She was already sick of living a life where she was kept and raised for the sake of someone else.

However, her life that she had always dreamed of suddenly ended.

".....Riley, Riley -"

One day, while Riley was dreaming, she heard the pleasant voice of a woman that she had never heard before.

"Who are you?"

In the dream, Riley responded to the voice. The voice also replied back to Riley as well.

"Riley..... I have a request of you. Please, lend me your power....."

"Like I said, who are you? Something like suddenly wanting me to lend you my power, I'll be troubled if you suddenly ask me such a thing."

At that time, if only she had responded more politely, maybe such a thing wouldn't have happened to her, is what she thought later. However, since Riley was finally living a life of freedom, something like a person she didn't even know making a "request" of her, greatly irritated her. Since it was in a dream, her true feelings came out.

"I'm the goddess, the one that's been guiding the Hero in this world. You've been chosen as well, to become the 'savior' of the next generation."

The self-proclaimed goddess kept insisting so to Riley in an indifferent tone of voice.

However, Riley couldn't see her anywhere. She could only hear her disembodied voice.

“The former Hero was just like you. He had been wasting his time in his room with his fantasy-riddled imagination only. That's why I chose him to become a savior. He's completed his 'role' successfully, so he's been released from the role of the 'savior.'”

“Even if you say something like that, why me..... What's more, saying something like I'm just wasting my time indulging in fantasies, how rude! To me, the time I'm spending is quite meaningful!”

“Those that are living a meaningless life while having the power to save the world, do not have the right to refuse.”

The goddess continued speaking.

“The former Hero does not have the power this time. However, you already have the ability within you. Even if I do not give you a gift, you'll surely be fine.”

“Gift? What are you talking about.....?”

While she was still talking, Riley felt an uncomfortable feeling in her body.

“Right now, I'm going to transport you to another world.”

Riley's vision suddenly became dark.

“Eh, for real? This isn't a dream? Are you kidding me!?”

Her body started floating, and rotating around. At the strange sensation, Riley was about to get motion sickness. That's what she thought, but gravity suddenly returned to normal again.

“- Now, drop down!!”

When she opened her eyes, while having the unpleasant sensation of almost wanting to throw up..... She was in the middle of the air. The stars in the dim night sky were above her, and she could feel cold air blowing up against her from below.

“Ahhhhhhhhhh!”

She was falling head first towards the ground at an increasing speed.

“So-called goddess! Are you trying to kill meeeee!!”

No matter how meaningless she thought my daily life was, to be suddenly punished like this was too cruel. Riley instantly used some magic to protect herself from the fall. After all, she had been a member of the Hero’s party, a magic swordsman. She wouldn’t have been able to be a member of his party if she wasn’t skilled in magic. However.....

“Eh? Why can’t I use magic!?”

No matter what she tried, she couldn’t use magic. There was no magic reaction at all.

“What’s going on~~~~!?”

Riley’s only choice left was – to entrust her body to the force of gravity and continue falling.

After falling through the air for a bit, the ground finally approached..... is what she thought, but something suddenly wrapped around Riley’s body. It seemed to be some type of large cloth.

It seems that she’s fallen on top of a cloth that was covering the roof of a tall building. With a creaking sound, the cloth tore. Below it was yet another cloth. This repeated several times over, which finally managed to slow down her rate of falling.

“Thanks to the cloths, even if I land on the ground, I might get away with only light bruises.”

When Riley realized this, she closed her eyes and prepared herself for impact. However, the shock of her body hitting the ground didn’t come. Instead, she landed with a thud onto something soft. It wasn’t the same as the cloth from earlier. It was something firmer than that.

When she gingerly opened her eyes – there was a person underneath Riley.

“Ah.....”

A pair of clear blue eyes were staring straight at Riley. He was a young man. It seems that he had caught Riley as she was falling down.

“Are you alright? Are you..... not injured?”

The young man had pale blonde hair and a good looking face, and he seemingly had a gentle expression that was worrying about Riley’s well-being. Riley nodded in response to his words.

“Mmm..... I’m really sorry for falling down on top of you. You as well, are you injured anywhere?”

“I’m fine. But anyways, that was sure a surprise. Someone suddenly falling down from the sky..... By the way.”

The young man suddenly grabbed Riley’s arm, and spoke up happily.

“All this, isn’t this the crime of large-scale property destruction? Is it alright if I capture you now?”

“.....Hah?”

With a nice smile, he took out something that looked like handcuffs from his pocket.

“Uhh, it was force majeure that caused me to break the roof.....?”

(What should I do, for me to have done something like already committing a crime the moment I came to another world..... Goddess, help me please!)

In her mind, Riley prayed for help to the person in question that had brought her over to this world. However, nobody answered Riley’s prayers. Because of her indolent responses earlier, maybe the goddess had gotten angry.

Riley suddenly pushed the young man away, put some distance between them, and looked around the area. As expected, Riley saw nothing but sights she had never seen before. Huge, rectangular shaped buildings lined the streets of town. The roads were paved with stone, but were quite dirty. There was some garbage scattered on the street corners, and graffiti had been applied haphazardly on some of the walls.

She was in a place she didn't know at all, she was being accused of something she didn't understand, and she couldn't even use magic. It seems that the goddess has sent Riley to quite an unbelievable place.